Art Unit: 1793

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 12-19, 59-63, 65-72 and 74-92 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The computer model is not described with such specificity as to enable one of ordinary skill in the art to use the invention. For example, claim 12 recites that the computer model is used to determine one or more optimal locations in the combustion system for the injection of particles. However there is nothing in the specification which would teach one how the model is "used" to make such a determination, other than to state that the various computer programs (ATrAN, Chemkin, and FLUENT) are known in the prior art. The same is true for the "uses" of the computer models recited in the other claims. The block diagrams are not provided, other than to show that various parameters are fed into the prior art computer models. See MPEP 2106.01 and 2106.02. Applicants' argument, that in the examples given in the specification, several computer programs are used to help create a computer model of a combustion system, is not convincing. Even if the applicant has cited prior art patents or publications to demonstrate that particular block diagram hardware or software components are known, it is not self-evident how these known computer programs are to be interconnected to function in the disclosed complex manner. See In re

Scarborough, 500 F. 2d 560, 566, 182 USPQ 298, 301 (CCPA 1974) and In re Forman, 463 F. 2d 1125, 1129, 175 USPQ 12, 16 (CCPA 1972). Although Paragraphs [27], [30], [33] and [39] disclose how various programs can be used to model various parameters, it would require undue experimentation for one of ordinary skill in the art to determine how these programs are interconnected to simultaneously model such parameters as flow patterns, temperature patterns and condensation reactions. Moreover, Fig. 1 shows that various parameters from blocks 16 and 18 were provided as inputs to CHEMKIN and FLUENT models. But there is no disclosure as to how the CHEMKIN and FLUENT models would be properly programmed to perform the required calculations or to coordinate the other system components to perform the disclosed and claimed functions. See In re Brown, 477 F.2d at 951, 177 USPQ at 695.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 76, 86, 91 and 92 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. In claims 76 and 86, the recitation of "at least one of...and" is improper Markush terminology. The phrase should be changed to - - at least one member selected from the group consisting of...and - - to avoid this rejection. In claims 91 and 92, the recitation of "CFD-Fluent", "Chemkin", "ATRAN" and "GDE" render the scope of the claims vague and indefinite, since it is not clear that these trademarks have fixed and definite meanings. See MPEP 608.01 (v).

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

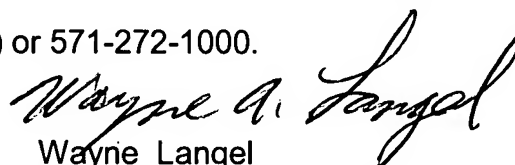

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
